DANCING ON WATER is a compilation of personal stories, chronicling one woman's quest for understanding and self-discovery. It is about how the answers to some of life's more mysterious questions are sometimes revealed in small and surprising places. In particular, the stories are about dolphins, whales, and other animal companions who participate in her journey. Out of the blue, dolphins "visit" in meditation, and then continue to appear, in amazingly synchronistic ways in her life. Over time they become interspecies "teachers" of humor and relationship, reminding us of our deep interconnectivity to all living things. Teaching by example, our cetacean friends invite us to stay in joy, to be in present time and to practice forgiveness. The author explores the areas of animal communication, telepathy and psychic awareness and offers the reader clues as to how to develop these skills. Ultimately, we are continuously being asked to act as stewards for the betterment of our planet and a miraculous variety of creatures, both great and small. A combination of lyrical narrative and subtle symbolism make this an engaging and delightful read.
